

Peter Zlotnick is the Principal Timpanist for the Greensboro Symphony, Winston-Salem Symphony, and Salisbury Symphony, and he has performed frequently with the North Carolina Symphony.

In the coming year, he is extremely excited to begin serving as Music Director for the Greensboro Symphony Youth Orchestra!

During the school year, Peter teaches percussion at the Greensboro Cultural Center and Young Musicians of Alamance. In the summer, he serves as lead Instrumental Music teacher at the North Carolina Governor's School West. Peter has also been a guest teacher at UNC-Greensboro, UNC School of the Arts, Wake Forest University, and Catawba College.

Peter received his M.M. in Percussion and Music Education from Northwestern University and B.M. from the Eastman School of Music. He lives in Westerwood in Greensboro, NC, with his wife Luci, sons Maxwell and Benjamin, and cat, Stash.
